THE SILVER JUBILEE

The Office of Works will erect stands for the convenience of a limited number of commissioned Naval and Marine officers on the Active and Retired Lists who may desire to view the State drive to and from St. Paul's Cathedral on the occasion of the Thanksgiving Service on May 8. Seats will be charged for at the rate of about 10s. each to defray the cost, and tickets will be issued only on prepayment on allotment.

Applications should be made as soon as possible, and must be received at the latest by February 16, but seats will not be allotted until the size of the stands has been decided. It is unlikely that more than two tickets can be allotted to any officer, one of which he should use for himself. So far as possible the claims of all ranks of officers will be considered, but if the number of seats available is insufficient to meet all applications preference will be given to those who are senior in rank. Officers of the Royal Navy on full pay should apply through their Com-

KING TO LEAD HIS FLEET

Navy Celebration Of Jubilee

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 16.
Arrangements are now being completed for the Naval Review at Spithead on July 16 in celebration of the Silver Jubilee.

It will be the most imposing spectacle of its kind for 21 years, with ships of the Home and Mediterranean Fleets participating.

The Naval forces "on parade" before the King are likely to comprise:— Nine battleships,
Two battle-cruisers,
Three aircraft-carriers,
Thirty-six leaders and destroyers,
Many submarines and auxiliary craft.

The entire force numbering about 70 vessels.
Nine flag-officers will be flying their flags, the senior officers being Sir William Fisher and the Earl of Cork, respectively commanding the Mediterranean and Home Fleets. The total number of officers and men serving in the ships present should exceed 24,000.

If precedent is followed, the Fleet will be moored at Spithead in three or more parallel lines, through which will steam the Royal yacht with their Majesties on board.

At the close of the review, or on the following day, the combined Fleets will, it is understood, be led to sea by the King in the Victoria and Albert. Various tactical exercises will then be carried out before his Majesty.

An official programme has yet to be prepared. But the organisation of the review and the character of the Fleet exercises to be held at sea immediately following are now the subject of correspondence between the Admiralty and the Home and Mediterranean Commanders-in-Chief.

It is considered that the Home Fleet will be present in strength, lacking only one battleship and one battle-cruiser undergoing refit. The Mediterranean contingent will probably include the First Battle Squadron, the First Cruiser Squadron, an aircraft-carrier, and perhaps a destroyer flotilla. Whether any ships of the Reserve Fleet are to be commissioned for the occasion is not yet known.

Officers of the Fleet or Home Port to which they may be attached. Retired and Half-Pay Naval Officers should apply to the Secretary, Admiralty, London, marking the envelope in the bottom left-hand corner. Officers of the Royal Marines attached to Divisional Headquarters should similarly forward their applications to the Colonel-Commandant of the Division to which they are attached. Retired Marine Officers should apply to the Adjutant-General, Royal Marines, Admiralty, London, marking the envelope "Silver Jubilee Celebrations."

Should Women dread the approach of a perfectly natural event?

NATURE never intended you to suffer unduly. Why is it then that so many thousands of women experience such pain and weakness?

Simply because there is a shortage of vital minerals in the body.

That is the reply, supported by the best medical opinion. Calcium is the vital food of every body cell, and any shortage hinders the correct performance of all bodily functions, particularly those of women.

The use of Kalzana, the mineral food, for a few weeks provides the whole system with the indispensable minerals needed to establish that care-free, vigorous health that Nature intended you to enjoy.

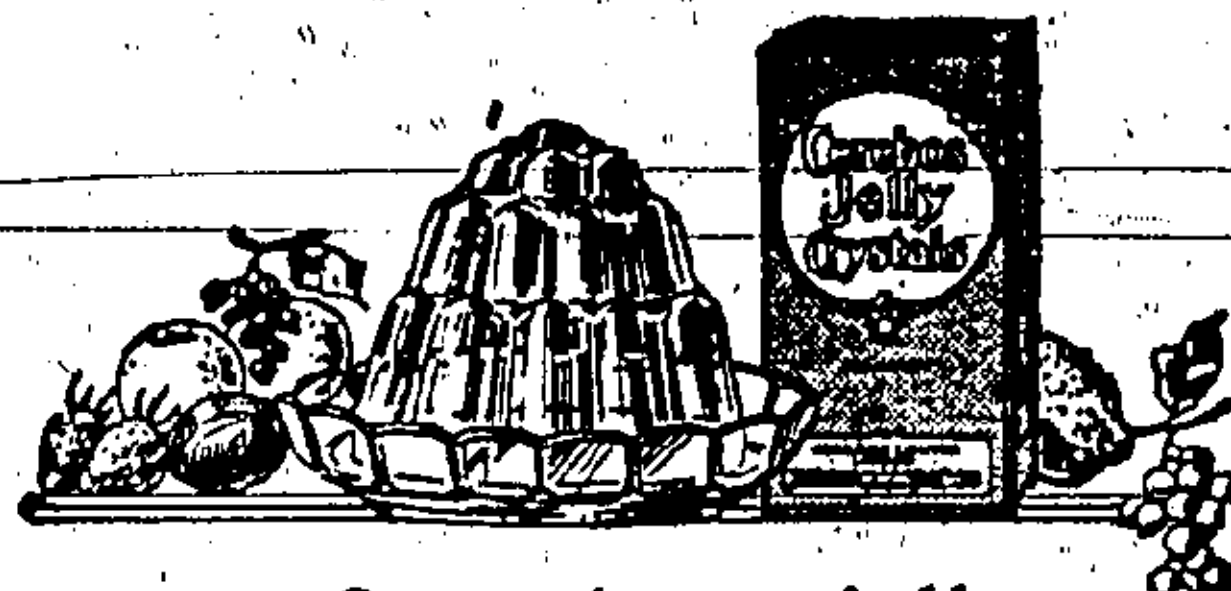

But it must be Kalzana, as only in this scientific form (a combination of sodium-lactate and calcium-lactate) will the mineral salts be taken up and retained by your body.

Lose your dread—re-establish the functions on a normal basis by starting a course of Kalzana to-day.

THE AFFAIRS OF CELLINI

The Story Of A Great Lover, A Great Artist—The Most Charming Rascal Of All Time

(By LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE)

"This key unlocks the balcony door to my apartments," she said.

Benvenuto Cellini, famed as a goldsmith, feared as a fighter and notorious as a lover, is forced to kill many enemies and ordered hanged by the Duke of Florence. Benvenuto plans to try and escape with Della, his one love, but the Duchess plans to make him her lover, and saves him on pretext of having him make gold plates for the de Medici table. The Chancellor, Ottaviano, his bitterest enemy, brings four soldiers to fight him and Benvenuto is fighting against great odds.

The iron bench anvil that Ottaviano, the craven sneak, hurled directly toward Benvenuto's face when he had all that he could do to fight off the three soldiers without thinking of dodging, would have floored Benvenuto had he not stepped on the handle of an engraving tool and slipped.

The heavy block of iron struck the stone wall back of the bench and caromed off on the arm of one of the soldiers who's sword thrust would have wounded Benvenuto. As it was, the soldier's thrust went wild and a slash from Benvenuto's sword seemed to half sever the soldier's hand, so that he was helpless.

"Come on, varlets!" Benvenuto cried, at last, "have yourselves spilled speedily, that I may cut off the ears of this dog, Ottaviano!" At this, Ottaviano danced in and out, making sure to keep away from Benvenuto's sword reach and to prick him when he was turned sideways to face the others.

Amid the turmoil none of them heard the fan-fare of trumpets outside. The Duchess of Florence had arrived in full state, to see Benvenuto on a matter of the golden plates.

A guard, posted by the Duke, tried to tell the Duchess that the Duke had forbidden anyone to enter.

Her own guards showed the man aside with a laugh. One of her guards flung open the door.

"Her Excellency the Duchess!" he cried. But the fighters did not hear him, and before he could turn and tell the Duchess that there was a fight inside, she had entered.

Dead Soldier

The sight frightened her at first, then it amazed her. On the floor lay one dead soldier. Another was trying to bind something around his half severed hand and much blood was all about. On the bench Benvenuto was fighting off the two soldiers with such skill that they were actually becoming timid. In their onslaughts. Back of them the anger-crazed Ottaviano was trying to get in a cowardly thrust and then leap back.

"In a few minutes, thou dog, Ottaviano," Benvenuto cried again, "and off come your ears! Then I shall shave your motheaten beard so closely that you will have no chin!"

For a moment the Duchess stared at the valiant Benvenuto. He was more of a hero than she had believed, and she suddenly felt a greater admiration for him than ever.

"Stop!" she screamed, shrilly. "Your Duchess orders you to stop!" Ottaviano heard this and turned. At once he became startled, and frightened. What might the Duke do to him?

The soldiers saw her then and backed away, frightened.

Then Benvenuto saw her. Standing on the work bench he made her a low bow, wiped the red stains from his sword and said, "Your Excellency."

"Down with swords. How dare you brawl in my presence?" the Duchess cried.

"Clear the place" she ordered as Ottaviano was trying to think of a diplomatic excuse to make, "and take the creature away." She indicated the dead soldier. "Out with all of you!" she cried.

Another chance for Benvenuto to save his neck, Ottaviano saw. "But, my Lady," he said, "this man was condemned to be hanged and he tried to escape!"

"The dog lies, my Lady!" Benvenuto said, calmly enough. "I was ordered by the Duke to remain here alone and finish the plates for your Excellency. Ottaviano came with the soldiers and ordered them to kill me. I had to fight to save my life that I might finish the plates for you."

"You, Ottaviano, with your lying excuses! Out with you, I will settle with you later!"

"Please let me explain—" "I have spoken." The Duchess glanced at her own guards and Ottaviano bowed low and departed, unable to bear the humiliation of being forcibly led out.

To the guard who was beside her the Duchess said, "Stand guard—outside the closed door."

The apprentice had crawled in to the other room at this time. The Duchess tried to appear angry and outraged as she eyed Benvenuto from head to foot and admire him the more, seeing him with his shirt open at the throat, his hair disheveled and his breast heaving from the efforts of keeping four soldiers at bay.

No Woman Safe

"Come closer!" she ordered. "Yes, my Lady." He came quite close to her.

"So it is true, these things said about you. You are a goldsmith of much talent, but above all else, you are Benvenuto Cellini, the swaggering, murdering, romantic Cellini! She stepped close to him and went on: "Cellini, the man I was afraid of, the man with whom no woman is safe! Am I right?"

He was staring into her eyes in silence, a gleam of amusement and of admiration there. He stepped very close to her and she caught her breath.

"You would not dare lay hands on me," she murmured, but it was as much of an invitation as a warning.

"My Lady, such a thought never entered my head." He bowed low, hand over heart, and then kept his gaze upon her.

"Indeed! Is it because the Duchess of Florence is not so attractive as the simpaton girls of Venice?"

"My Lady, do not misconstrue my words. It is because you are my Duchess that I dare not touch you, much as I yearn to do so."

The Duchess smiled and then managed to seem stern. "A Moody floor is not so attractive, why do you look down?"

He looked at her quickly, saw the inviting light in her eyes and made as if to reach out to her, but she stepped back.

"My reason for coming," she said, coldly, "was to see for myself whether I cared to entrust you with another commission of your art."

"If my lady will but have faith in me, I shall promise my best for her in all things."

"If all I hear is true, that would be most unusual, yet, you do have amazing skill—in many matters, report has it."

She seemed to be thinking it over and then she took from the bosom of her gown a key and held it toward him.

"Yes, I shall entrust the commission to you. I wish to have a duplicate of this key made in gold, with the de Medici crest here."

She rested her hand against his for a moment and he drew back, his cheeks aflame, which made her smile. But she became impersonal again as she talked.

"Moreover, I want this made at once, now, and delivered this night."

PORK PIE

With A Professional

A cold meat pie served with a winter salad makes an ideal cold supper dish for a large family or party. And if it is a raised pork pie, it will have an instant success.

Now to make it with that professional look.

Cut up small 1½ lb. not too fat pork, season with pepper, and salt and a little grated nutmeg, and simmer any bones with a little cold water to make stock.

To make the crust allow 1½ lb. flour, 8 oz. lard, half a teaspoon, salt ½ pint milk and water mixed.

Sift flour and salt into a warm mixing bowl, and stand this in a warm place, or over a pan of hot water. Heat lard, milk and water until boiling, then make a well in the flour and pour in the liquid. Stir with a wooden spoon and knead to a smooth paste. Use the hands as soon as the paste is sufficiently cool.

Stand the paste for five minutes in a warm place, then, leaving a small piece for a lid, shape the crust with the hands on a warmed board into a hollow pie. If you have a mould or ring this will save you much time and trouble.

Even Warmth

Keep the paste warm all the time, or it will crack; if too warm leave to cool for a few seconds.

When sufficiently raised, half fill it with the meat, add a sliced hard-boiled egg, then fill up with meat.

Add a little of the stock, wet the edges, cover with the lid of the pie, raise the edges of the pastry and press together, then decorate the top with the pastry trimmings and snip the edges with a pair of scissors.

Make a slit in the top, put in a parchment funnel, brush with beaten egg and place on a buttered paper on a baking sheet. Bake in a fairly quick oven for the first 20 minutes, then a very slow one for 1½ hours.

To prevent it burning or becoming too brittle, cover the pie with a piece of wet double parchment paper, soaking this again as it becomes dry. When cooked, remove the parchment funnel, and pour in a cupful of stock in which two teaspoonfuls of gelatine have been dissolved. Stand in a cold place until set.

Veal and Ham

Or perhaps you prefer a veal and ham pie, equally tasty.

The pastry is made in the same way as for pork pie, but a few drops of lemon juice added to it improves the flavour when veal is used.

You will require 1½ lb. knuckle of veal, 6 oz. ham, one hard-boiled egg, half a teaspoonful of lemon rind, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, salt and pepper, and ½ pint of white stock.

Cut the veal and ham into small pieces, sprinkle over the parsley, lemon rind, salt and pepper, then continue as for pork pie above.

PINEAPPLE ROLL

Sift two cupfuls of flour into a basin with half a teaspoonful of salt. Rub in four tablespoonfuls of butter and add a quarter of a cupful of castor sugar. Mix to a light dough with half a cupful of milk and turn out on to a floured board. Roll out until it is three-quarter of an inch thick, spread with diced pineapple, and sprinkle with little castor sugar. Moisten the edges of the pastry and roll up. Lay on a greased baking sheet, brush over with milk, and bake in a moderate oven for half an hour.

CHEESE SOUP

Fry a small minced onion in an ounce of butter, boil up a seer of milk and add to the onion.

Puddings Without Eggs

When eggs are dear many a housewife is puzzled to remember really nice puddings which can be made without them.

In cold weather light suet puddings with their many variations and sauces to serve with them are admirable, especially for children.

From the foundation mixture many variats can be run, and an ordinary plain suet pudding with thick chocolate sauce poured over is a sweet treat hungry school children will appreciate at this time of year.

Definite Flavourings are "Toothsome"

Another way of serving it is to heat a large cupful of golden syrup and pour over just before serving. Add a few shredded almonds. Some cubes of crystallised ginger, cut up, and added to the treacle will make another variation.

This is a good foundation mixture for a boiled suet pudding. To half a pound of plain flour allow half a pound of white bread-crumbs, a teaspoonful of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt, and half a pound of chopped suet, with enough cold water to make this into a soft, or stiff, dough, according to the type of pudding desired. If this is to be boiled in a basin a soft dough is best, if for roly-poly use, then a dough which is stiff enough to roll on a pastry board is necessary. (Six ounces of suet is often allowed, but that extra two ounces in cold weather for growing children is worth while).

Delicious "Golden Glory" Pudding

Well grease pudding basin, have pan of water boiling, also, grease paper or pudding cloth for covering pudding, and see that all ingredients are to hand before you mix everything. Well stir in salt and baking powder first with the flour, then mix flour, suet and breadcrumbs, and make the dough by stirring in a little cold water at a time.

This mixture, rolled out, cut into rounds, and arranged in layers in a basin, with golden syrup and a light sprinkling of cinnamon or ginger between each layer, is delicious, and if a layer of golden syrup is put in the basin first it should turn out well. We call this Golden Glory.

BRAISED STUFFED CUCUMBER

Peel a large cucumber as thinly as possible cut it into two inch pieces and remove the centres. Cook 4 ozs. lentils till soft, then mash, adding a few chopped mushrooms and pepper and salt to taste. Make a smooth white sauce and stir into the mashed lentils with the yolk of an egg. Fill the cucumber shapes with the mixture and lay them in a baking tin with a little vegetable stock in the bottom of the tin. Cover with a piece of buttered paper and braise in a moderate oven for half an hour.

SUPPER SNACKS

Here are some tasty snacks and savouries for when friends call.

Cut some puff pastry into small fancy shapes, then spread with any of the following mixtures:—

First, sardines skinned and pressed through a hair sieve, then dusted with pepper and salt and chopped olives. Spread on the pastry and sprinkle with chopped hard-boiled egg and chopped parsley.

Mix a tablespoonful of cornflour with a little milk and stir into the soup till thickened. Add 3 ozs. grated cheese, season with salt and pepper and bring to the boil again before serving.

SURPRISE FOR THE CHILDREN

A Rainbow Cake

I have given many parties for children, and have repeatedly noticed that the usual party cake is not in demand.

The little ones admire the pretty decorations, but when it comes to eating the cake it's a different matter.

Here is a recipe for a cake which is always popular with the children and their little friends. And it is so pretty to look at when cut, being a mass of rainbow colourings.

Dainty Slices

Line a fairly large cake tin with buttered paper. I find a shallow one better than the deeper kind. The slices of cake are not so big, and therefore more suitable for tiny children.

Now for the ingredients.—5 eggs, their weight in castor sugar, butter and plain flour, a pinch of salt and a heaped teaspoonful of baking powder.

Cream the butter and sugar with a wooden spoon, then add the yolks of the eggs and, very gradually, the sifted flour, salt and baking powder.

When all the ingredients are well mixed, fold in the stiffly whisked whites of the eggs.

Arrange four pudding basins round the mixing bowl and put an equal amount of the sponge mixture into each.

Into one basin put two teaspoonfuls of chocolate powder, add a few drops of cochineal to the next to make it a pretty pink. Mix in a few drops of green colouring to the third basin, and to the fourth add a few drops of mauve colouring.

Stir each basin until the colouring is well blended with the ingredients, then, taking a little at a time from each basin, fill the prepared cake tin three-quarters full.

Place the tin in the middle of a fairly hot oven. After it has been in for ten minutes, reduce the heat. The cake should be cooked in just under an hour.

When baked remove from the oven, leave it in the tin for a few minutes, then cool on a wire rack.

Few children like almond icing or hard white sugar icing. I find soft icing much preferred, and it is not so sickly.

Violet and Silver

To prepare it sift a pound of icing sugar into a basin, add the strained juice of a lemon, and a few drops of mauve colouring, and mix to a smooth paste.

Dip a large knife in hot water and, with this spread the icing over the sides and top of the cake. Decorate with mauve violet petals and silver balls.

EGG AND SARDINE

Four a little tart jelly into a square tin, and when it begins to thicken arrange thin slices of peeled tomato at regular intervals.

Set with more jelly. Arrange a sardine on each tomato slice, and add decorations of chopped hard-boiled egg and parsley at each side.

Set with more jelly. When set cut into squares and serve on lettuce leaves.

HORS D'OEUVRES

Next time you are serving stuffed tomatoes with a dish, prepare and cook a few more than you need. If you squeeze lemon juice over them and leave them for the night you will find them an excellent hors d'oeuvre.

This is a celery hors d'oeuvre. Take six heads, the best part of them, and blanch them in boiling water. Let them get cold and marinate them for twenty-four hours with olive oil, the juice of a lemon, a bay leaf, and three or four cloves. Take out the bay leaf and cloves, and serve them in the marinade.

Three Sunday Dishes

BREAKFAST

Flaked Haddock

Stew a smoked haddock in milk, and, as soon as it is done, take the flesh from the bones in coarse flakes. Put these into a hot fire-proof dish, pour over them half a pint of Bechamel sauce to which a little anchovy essence has been added, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, and serve very hot.

DINNER

Liffey Flan

Mix together ½ lb. very finely chopped rind and juice of a lemon, the yolks of three eggs, and ½ lb. castor sugar. Lastly add 3oz. butter melted, and bake on an open tart of short crust.

SUPPER

Cheese Turnovers

Heat together in a saucepan, without boiling, four tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, two beaten eggs, a walnut of butter, salt, and cayenne to taste. When the mixture thickens set it aside to cool.

Roll out thinly the remains of paste from the flan, cut into rounds, place some of the mixture on each, fold over, moisten the edges and join, and bake in a hot oven.

Flavoured With Orange

To give extra zest to a marmalade or orange pudding, make this delicious orange sauce.

Boil together a tablespoonful of sugar, the grated rind of an orange, and ½ pint of water.

Mix a teaspoonful of cornflour to a smooth paste with cold water, pour over the boiling syrup, stir until boiling and thick, then add the strained orange juice.

Unusual Wine

Orange and ginger wine is excellent. To make it, put the rind and juice of twenty-four oranges into a tub, pour over three gallons of water, add 4oz. bruised ginger, 1lb. raisins and 9lb. sugar.

Stir well daily for a fortnight, then strain into a cask, add 4oz. singlass and bung tightly.

Sweet Fritters

Orange fritters make a favourite sweet for Sunday supper. Seedless oranges are best. Remove the skin and pith, divide each orange into quarters, and drop each piece into a thickish batter, so that it is well coated.

Fry quickly, drain on paper and sprinkle with castor sugar.

Baked—with Cream

Unusual, but delicious, are baked oranges. Choose large oranges, cut them into quarters without peeling them, then place them on a baking tin in a moderate oven and sprinkle with sugar. Baste with the syrup until they are browned. Serve with cream.

CURRIED SPINACH

Pick and wash four or five bundles of spinach and cook with very little water till tender, drain through a sieve to extract all the water then rub till of a fine consistency of puree. Fry a sliced onion in a spoonful of butter, add a little curry powder and simmer till brown, stir in the spinach puree and season with salt. Let it cook gently for a few minutes then add the juice of half a lemon. Dish up on a round dish and garnish with boiled rice as for an ordinary curry. The addition of a sliced garlic and green chillies improves the flavour.

BRIGHT Autumn sunshine—sudden changes—cool evenings make tricky times for normal health. With changing seasons many people find health a problem, and Autumn usually brings its crop of attacks in the form of colds and sore throats. For quick relief from colds 'ASPRO' has fulfilled all claims made for it, and if taken according to the directions it not only quickly ends a cold—it smashes further developments in the form of influenza, and prevents many days laying up in bed. If taken as a gargle according to the direction on the leaflet in the packet 'ASPRO' gives astonishing relief in a very short while. The reason why 'ASPRO' is so valuable for colds, sore throats, and many conditions of illness is because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic—anti-periodic, and anti-fermentative. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart, and its standard of purity conforms to the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession.

THE KEY

Opening To-day At
The Alhambra

Just as it appears on many public buildings in Ireland, the "Bloody Hand of Ulster" is seen in several of the sets constructed for "The Key," the Warner Bros. picture opening to-day at the Alhambra Theatre.

Colin Clive, appearing with William Powell and Edna Best in this romance of revolutionary Dublin, is a close student of history, especially British history. On an exterior set during the production of the picture, he explained the significance of the "Bloody Hand."

The set represents a public square in Dublin, during the stormy Sinn Féin days of 1920. British military headquarters, on one side of the square, occupy a huge stone building, presumably several hundred years old. On each side of the entrance way, a stone plaque appears prominently on the wall; and on each stone plaque is a hand, palm open, fingers outstretched, painted in gold.

"That is the symbol of the very heart of the Ulster Irish," said the English actor as he went on to recount its origin.

"In the dark ages, according to Gaelic legend, the clan of O'Neill and a vast Scottish tribe were contending for supremacy in Northern Ireland. The O'Neills were out-numbered by the Scots but to their standard came many a true-hearted son of the land, in defence of home. They made up in bravery what they lacked in numbers.

"When finally the two factions met in battle at sea, they fought steadily for two days and two nights. But they were so evenly matched that neither won.

"A temporary truce was called and the two leaders met for parley. O'Neill, in fact, entertained the Scottish chieftain at a banquet aboard his war vessel.

"At this banquet it was decided to settle their trouble by a race. Their galleys would start at a given point and row towards the Ulster coast. The party which first touched the rocks along the coast would have possession. It was to be a race of a dozen miles.

"The two boats were neck and neck the whole way. As they neared the coast, the O'Neill oarsmen could not seem to pull ahead. This, he decided, would never do. So he raised his battle axe and chopped off his own left hand and threw it on the rocks. And that, according to legend, is how the O'Neills saved their land from the Scots.

The hand, painted in gold, is seen on many public buildings in the land—the official badge of Ulster.

MIRACLE WOMAN

Showing At The Star

The sweeping significance of a screen play like "The Miracle Woman," the Columbia film that opened at the Star Theatre, last night, should long remain in the memory of theatregoers. Here is a brilliantly conceived film about the age-old but powerful theme of regeneration through love. Barbara Stanwyck contributes another of her memorable performances in the dramatic and emotional starring role. Without any question of doubt, here is a star that is sensational. She is one of the outstanding actresses in pictures—beautiful and a performer of rare ability. Such sincerity in acting is rarely seen. She has made every one of her screen interpretations a masterpiece through her ability to actually feel her way into the part. Don't miss her performance in this film.

From the standpoint of dramatic value, "The Miracle Woman" is full of pathos and human appeal. Embittered by the death of her minister father, young and beautiful Florence Fallon falls under the influence of a rascally adventurer, named Forsythe, who utilizes the dramatic ability of the girl for dishonest commercial purposes. Submissive at first, her conscience gradually awakens, but it is not until her meeting with John Carson, a blind aviator, who moves her to shame by his faith, that she definitely rebels. And what a rebellion! It is enough to say that few people, who see Barbara Stanwyck in this thrilling, denouement, will forget the enormity of her portrayal. She is simply grand! The supporting cast includes

BALI

The Island Of 1001 Temples

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

In connection with the unique event in the theatrical history of the Colony of the arrival of the Royal Balinese Dancers yesterday, it may be of interest to our readers to know something more about this wonderful land, which is called "The land of 1001 Temples" and which is considered as one of the most interesting spots in the world.

Just as it was in Europe in the middle ages, to-day in Bali the Church and Society form an inseparable whole; indeed life in Bali is carried on entirely along lines of its religion.

In the first place, it is necessary to notice the old aboriginal belief in mountain, wood and lake spirits. This gives rise to numerous temples in which the great mountains, such as the Gunung Agung, the Gunung Batur and others are worshipped.

Then there are also many temples for sacred springs, while various sacred virtues are attributed to the waters of such springs.

The caves and bathing temples by the banks of the rivers also have to be mentioned. The caves are of Hinduistic origin and they are the bathing places of the Gods; they are just as sacred as the Bura's (Temples).

The chief of the Balinese Pantheon is the Sun, who is identified with Siwa. This is the only Hindu God who is worshipped at the temples.

On a somewhat different plane is the worship of the "World-Serpent," Antaboga, who is at the same time Lord or Guardian of the Nether-World.

It must be stated that of all the Hindu Gods it is only for the Sun God and occasionally for the Trinity that shrines have been built in Bali.

THE LINE-UP

Opening To-day At
The Queen's

Marion Nixon runs afoul of the underworld and the law in her featured role in the Columbia production, "The Line-Up" starting a three-day run to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

Through a chain of circumstances she obtains employment in a fur store that is handling stolen garments and is "caught with the goods" when she is taken into custody with a stolen coat under her arm.

William Gargan and Paul Hurst appear in the picture as detectives. Gargan, sympathetic and believing the girl innocent, and Hurst, as a bullying "dick" intent on railroad her to prison. Gargan prevails upon the forces of the law to turn the girl loose, believing she will lead them to the real criminals. This she does innocently enough, but not before she is trapped in a cellar filled with deadly ammonia fumes.

The story takes its title from the line-up at police headquarters, where suspects are paraded for identification. In the story, Gargan, in love with Miss Nixon, is obliged to force her to stand on the platform with criminals of the lowest order and to undergo a severe questioning.

John Miljan, Noel Francis, Harold Huber and a few others are in the supporting cast, with Miljan as the "fence" who disposes of the stolen goods, Huber as an underworld chief, and Noel Francis as the girl-friend of the "fence."

Sam Hardy, who scores as the villainous Hornsby; David Manners, who plays the role of the blind aviator, Beryl Mercer, Russell Hopton, Charles Middleton, Eddie Boland, Thelma Hill, Aileen Carlyle and Harry Todd. And they're all good. Each contributes a definite bit toward almost artistically perfect picture.

Again director Frank Capra comes through. . . and we have to continue saying the same thing about him. . . namely, that his association with a picture is a guarantee of its success. One after the other, a smash hit—"Flight," "Ladies of Leisure," "Rain or Shine" and "Dirigible."

NOW SHOWING AT THE KING'S

The Life Of Vergie
Winters

Ann Harding, with a brilliant cast headed by John Boles, scores one of the year's brightest screen triumphs with "The Life of Vergie Winters," current attraction at the King's Theatre.

Distinguished, poignant and gripping are adjectives which must be used to describe this RKO-Radio production.

The story, epic in quality, covers a period of twenty-two years from 1910 to 1932, and runs the gamut of emotions in strikingly human and sincere fashion.

As Vergie Winters, a small town milliner, Miss Harding gives a superb performance in a role entirely worthy of her exceptional talents.

Boles, in the leading male role, gives a powerful and moving performance which ranks probably as the best of the many fine characterizations he has done.

Helen Vinson, as the cold and selfish wife, Betty Furness as Miss Harding's daughter, Molly O'Day, Wesley Barry, Ben Alexander, Creighton Chaney, Josephine Whittell, Donald Crisp, Mabel Turner and Cecil Cunningham are others of the huge cast deserving of special mention.

Alfred Santoli's understanding direction brings out the utmost in drama and human interest appeal from the poignant story.

Focusing upon Vergie Winters, the story tells of a great love that endures gossip, scandal, and malicious persecution. Condemned as "scarlet" because it defies the conventions, this love is the ideal to which Vergie Winters clings through twenty-two years of vicissitudes. And in the gripping climax it is the ideal for which she is willing to give her life or her freedom.

COMING TO THE QUEEN'S

Biography Of A Bachelor Girl

In a screen play admirably suited to their talents Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery are again to be seen together at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Biography of a Bachelor Girl," directed by E. H. Griffith.

This is the first time this popular team has been co-starred since the outstanding hit from the same studio, "When Ladies Meet."

The new picture has all the charm and appeal of the former one, all the sophistication and bright dialogue, with the addition of some of the most breath taking outdoor scene ever flashed on a screen.

In the first place, the play is the celebrated "Biography" of the stage, superbly written by S. N. Behrman. The dialogue seems to have remained almost intact in spite of Anita Loos' splendid adaptation to the new medium.

Bearing the mark of any production by Irving Thalberg, "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" is admirably cast. Edward Everett Horton appears as the comical stuffed shirt, Nolan, Edward Arnold brings all his well known charm to the role of Feydak, Austrian composer. Una Merkel, as Slade, finds time between cocktail tails to fall in love. Charles Richman puts the same finesse into the screen characterization of Kinloch as he did on the stage, where he created the role. And Greta Meyer is again the admirable servant as Minnie.

But most of all there is Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery, the perfect co-starring team. As Marion, sophisticated artist Miss Harding has never appeared in a more suitable role. And the part of Kurt, hard-boiled young editor,

"SON OF A SAILOR"

At The Oriental
To-day

Joe E. Brown, popular First National comedian will be seen on the screen in what is reputed to be his funniest picture, "Son of a Sailor" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

As the title indicated this is a picture of naval life. Joe has the role of an over-imaginative sailor whose vaity and boastfulness lead him into more scrapes than you can shake a stick at.

Many scenes in the comedy were taken aboard the U.S.S. Saratoga, an airplane carrier of the Pacific Fleet, which was loaned to the company for the occasion. Eleven hundred gobs, who make up the crew of the warship, had the time of their lives in watching Joe at work. They also took part as extras and as atmosphere in some of the sequences.

There are also a large number of movie gobs in the picture in addition to Joe. Jean Muir, who plays the leading feminine role, is not a gob, but she is the daughter of an admiral and the sweetheart of a sailor. Others in the cast include Thelma Todd, Frank McHugh, Johnny Mack Brown, Sheila Terry, George Blackwood, Merna Kennedy, Samuel Hinds, Noel Francis, Kenneth Thomson, Arthur Vinton and George Irving.

During the production of Cecil B. DeMille's most recent film "Cleopatra," at the Paramount studios in Hollywood, someone with a penchant for plain and fancy statistics unearthed the following choice tidbits.

More than 5000 persons were employed on the picture, which is to open simultaneously at the Alhambra and Central Theatres on March 16, with Claudette Colbert, Warren William and Henry Wilcoxon. This includes, of course, the technicians, leading players, extras and bit players.

The feathers of 600 pheasants were used to make up the fans of the Egyptian dancing girls in one scene.

A total of 185 pounds of clothing was worn by Claudette Colbert, as Cleopatra, and Henry Wilcoxon, as Marc Antony, in one of their love scenes.

It took 600 nitric feathers to make up the solid feathered arch before which stood Cleopatra's couch.

The DeMille "bathtub" in this picture (the public bath at Rome) measured 100 by 150 feet.

To add that necessary tan to the Egyptians and Roman legionnaires, 85 gallons of body make-up was used throughout the production.

It took the hair of 700 European peasants to make up the wigs, curls, switches and hair pieces used by principals and extras. It is estimated.

The plaster shop at Paramount hired 120 sculptors and plaster workers to make the sphinxes.

columns and other portions of the sets.

Cleopatra's palatial barge, one of the most lavish things described by history, was reproduced both as to exterior and interior by DeMille. The original was 400 feet long and could carry 4000 people.

As produced by DeMille "Cleopatra" is the entrancing romance of the Siren of the Nile, and the valiant Roman, Marc Antony who lingered with love while mighty empires tottered beneath their feet.

MURDER TRIAL

Castle Peak Piracy Sequel

Committal proceedings were continued yesterday before Mr. A. W.
G. H. Grantham at the Kowloon
Magistrate's Court against Chan Ho, Ho Wing and Kwok Kan Hei charged with others not in custody with the murder of Chan Tai Lai when in Castle Peak on January 15.

Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor, prosecuted and the defendants were not represented. At yesterday's hearing Chan, Koi, spinster, cousin of the deceased, gave evidence to the effect that on January 15 at about 5 p.m. she saw the second accused in a boat anchored in front of their boat. At about 10 p.m. she was awakened by a noise and on pushing open the hatch of the hold in which she was sleeping she was immediately struck on the head with a chopper. Her assailant was not seen by her. She could not identify any of the accused. Chan Man and the deceased were not where to be seen. The boat was grounded. The three women on board then sailed the boat back to Castle Peak. She went into hospital and since leaving it had been under the care of the police.

At an identification parade held on February 2 she picked out the second and third defendants as being known to her.

Corroborative evidence was also given by Leung Ho wife of Chan Man who had disappeared.

She, however, heard the sound of somebody going overboard but saw nothing at all of what had happened. She was struck in the face with a chopper while in the hold. She picked out the third accused at an identification parade.
A chopper, a dagger and a large file were picked up on the boat after the robbers had left.

Sergt. R. Davies attached to the Water Police Station, deposed to going to the scene of the crime with a party of police officers on January 16.

On board were found one empty cartridge, two live rounds, a chopper, a large file and a knife.
Patches of blood were on the deck.
One box appeared to have been ransacked and the place was scattered with clothing and copper pieces.

Sergt. J. E. Scott, Police Armourer, gave evidence regarding the bullets after which Sergt. J.
Walsh of the Tai O Police Station went into the witness box.

Two Men Arrested
Giving evidence Sergt. Walsh said that on February 2 on information he proceeded to the main creek at Tai O and there found junk No. 2052 HD. He boarded her and found the second and third accused on board and had them arrested. The same day he sent them to Headquarters under escort.

Kwok Kam Tsui a boatman, a sworn brother of the deceased said that he knew the three accused for some time and that they (the accused) had been friends. He had seen the second and third defendants ashore one day previous to the crime. That night he was awakened by somebody's cries and he got the two injured men ashore.
Chan Tai Lai was rushed to hospital where he died twenty five minutes after admission. Subsequently he made a report to the police.

After further evidence was given the case was adjourned until this afternoon.

DEAN SWANN'S SUCCESSOR

The Board of Patronage of St.
John's Cathedral has decided not to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Very Rev. Dean
A. Swann at present. It has appointed Bishop Hall to act as Dean with the Rev. E. W. Barnes to assist him.

With the consecration of Bishop Mok Shau-tang, Bishop Hall has been relieved of most of his Chinese work and thus will be able to devote more time to the English work. He will give most of his time to the Cathedral on Sundays and during the week, but the brunt of the day by day care of the congregation will be carried on by the Rev. Mr. Barnes shoulders.
Dean Swann resigned owing to failing health after seven years' service with the Cathedral. He is leaving for England shortly.

ROBBERY WITH VIOLENCE

Chinese Committed For Trial

Before Mr. W. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday, Yu Ching, a 23-year-old Chinese, was committed to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions, for the robbery of $5 from Kwok Mul, a married woman, and with having used personal violence at near Shek-O Road on March 2.

Inspector Logan, outlining the facts of the case stated that complainant was a provision-carrier for Mr. Rose of the P.W.D. On Saturday, March 2, about 2.30 p.m.
while she was walking from Tyamtuk to Shaukiwan with two empty baskets and a bamboo pole, she saw defendant squatting on the road side. At the corner between Fung Moon Ngu and Tyam-tuk, after complainant had walked past defendant, the latter ran in front of her, and caught hold of her neck. After struggling for a while, defendant brought complainant to the ground and then he extracted a $5 bill from her jacket pocket. Defendant then tried to carry complainant up the low boundary on the hillside but the latter managed to break away and she ran towards Shaukiwan.
Complainant met some fishermen and told them of the incident.
The fishermen accompanied her to the Fung Moon Ngu, and there she met an old man whom she knew. She told him of the matter, and asked him to tell Lau Yung, a P.W.D. foreman to come and search for the defendant. Lau Yung then came later in a motor car with some men and his master and together they took "up" the search. Defendant was seen to be walking towards the motor car and ran down the hillside and disappeared in the bushes. The men and Lau Yung left the car and they spread over the hillside to find defendant. Two Indian constables who were then passing by also joined in the search, and eventually, a coolie found defendant and he was brought to the Shaukiwan Police Station.

After evidence had been taken,
His Worship, as stated, committed defendant for trial.

"HIAWATHA"

Entertains Service Men Last Night

The Service men in the Colony were given a rare treat by the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society at the China Fleet Club last night when they were entertained to the final rehearsal of Coleridge-Taylor's Cantata "Hiawatha" which the Society is presenting to the public to-night.

Coleridge-Taylor's "Hiawatha" needs no introduction to the public, since it has established itself as one of the four or five most notable choral works ever composed. It is based upon certain parts of Longfellow's well-known poem, the words of which lends itself admirably to vocal treatment.

For this somewhat ambitious production, the Society has been fortunate to obtain the services of several leading local vocalists—
Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith who will be the principal soprano, Mr. W.
J. T. Phelps (tenor) and Mr. W.
H. Billing (bass).

The chorus and principals have been putting in a lot of hard practice in conjunction with a large and effective orchestra of strings, winds and tympani, and it is safe that those who are going to see the show to-night will not be disappointed.

gister a change of address of a registered "mul-tsal," Yeung Fung, aged 18, and, on admitting the offence, was fined $10.

alleged to have embezzled a sum

he held a governmental position, was again mentioned before Mr.

SUMMONS AGAINST SHIP'S MASTER DISMISSED

Before Mr. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday, Captain Greer, master of the s.s. Seitsan, was summoned for commencing a voyage at a time not previously notified and not approved by the Inspector General of Police, on February 28.

The summons was dismissed.
Appearing for the defendant Mr.
W. A. Mackinlay said that notice was given that the ship would sail at 8 p.m., and subsequently at 9 p.m., and when the police arrived at 6.30 p.m. they were informed verbally that the ship would not leave until midnight.

Inspector Chester Woods said he understood that one of the ship's officers had mentioned in a casual manner that the ship would sail about midnight. Verbal notice was not sufficient, although he did not think it was laid down in the regulations.

AT THE MARINE COURT

ese trawler Kushi Maru, appeared before Commander Newell at the Marine Court yesterday morning, charged with disobeying the

The accused pleaded guilty and a fine of $25 was imposed.

CHANGE OF NAME

China Light & Power Co., Ltd.

A resolution to change the name of the Company from
The China Light & Power Company (1918), Ltd. to China Light & Power Co., Ltd., deleting the word "1918," was adopted at an extraordinary general meeting held in the Company's offices at St. George's Building yesterday afternoon.

The Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga was in the chair, and there were present Messrs. Felix A. Joseph, M.
K. Lo, C. A. da Rosa (directors),
D. W. Munton (manager), N.
Braga (secretary), and J. V.
Braga, A. M. Braga, H. Braga, B.
Alves, C. M. da Silva, W. J. Carroll, P. M. N. da Silva, Snr. and
P. M. N. da Silva, Jr. (shareholders).

Chairman's Speech

The Chairman said:
Before I formally propose, the Resolution as set out in the notice convening this Meeting, I propose to outline shortly the history of the present name of the Company and the reasons which have influenced your Directors in deciding to come to you for the necessary authority to change the present name to that stated in the Resolution.

At the Ordinary General Meeting of the China Light & Power Company Limited, held on the 20th October, 1917, the Chairman, after pointing out the necessity for obtaining further capital, indicated that the then directors proposed to form a new company with a capital of $1,000,000 divided into 200,000 shares at $5.00 each, the then company being known as
"The China Light & Power Company, Limited."

At the Ordinary General Meeting held in the following year on the 28th November, 1918, the Chairman once more referred to the proposed formation of a new company and indicated that a special meeting would be held in a few days to carry the proposal into effect.

On the 11th December, 1918, an Extraordinary General Meeting was held at which it was resolved that the China Light & Power Company, Limited, be wound up voluntarily and that a new company called the "China Light & Power Company (1918), Limited," be formed to take over the assets of the company then to be wound up, and other necessary and incidental resolutions were duly passed.

At another Extraordinary
General Meeting held on the 27th December, 1918, all the said resolutions were passed and confirmed as special resolutions.
The Directors are of the opinion that the present name is unnecessarily cumbersome with "1918" and further that the original necessity for inserting "1918" in order to distinguish this Company from the company then to be wound up no longer exists. It

PARLIAMENT IN HUNGARY

Dissolved By The Regent

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Budapest, Mar. 5.
The Hungarian Parliament was dissolved on Tuesday when the hand-written decree by the Regent, Horthy, was read aloud to the assembled deputies. A new parliament will meet on April 27.

The bombshell dropped by Goemboes on Tuesday afternoon in dissolving Parliament by the Regent's decree came as a shock to all political parties which unexpectedly have to face the rigours of a new electoral campaign.
When Horthy's decree was read aloud, the opposition on the left side of the House, especially the Social-Democrats, raised a storm of protest shouting out "what about the reform of the voting system." According to the present electoral law, the new Parliament must be elected within thirty days of the dissolution of the old one, but voting is by public declaration which the Socialists wanted to replace by secret ballot. After the House was dispersed about 30 deputies of the so-called Bethlen wing of the United party met to discuss their plan of campaign, when it was decided to form an independent electoral block "for the protection of the constitution." Ex-Premier Bethlen finally announced his withdrawal from the party. All the other groups held meetings to face the situation, deliberations everywhere being more or less stormy.— Transocean Kuo-Min

may be noticed that the name by which this Company was to be called was "China Light & Power Company (1918), Limited," without the word "The," but the Memorandum and Articles of Association and the Certificate of Incorporation both have the word
"The" in front of the name.

Your Directors, therefore, are of the opinion that the name of the Company should now be changed to "China Light & Power Company, Limited."

Under Section 21 of the Companies Ordinance, 1932, a company may, by special resolution and with the approval of the Governor, change its name. His Excellency the Governor has kindly signified his approval of the proposed change of our Company's name to "China Light & Power Company, Limited," and it is this Special Resolution is passed by you, the change will be carried legally into effect.

It therefore, formally propose the following Resolution as a Special Resolution:
That the name of the company be changed to "China Light & Power Company, Limited."
The proposal was seconded by Mr. W. J. Carroll and carried unanimously.

BALINESE DANCERS DELIGHT

Gracefulness The Keynote

Dancers have come and dancers have gone, but the display of the Balinese Dancers who made their debut in Hong Kong at the Queen's Theatre last night will indelibly be stamped in our memory as an outstanding success in the nature of its kind.

Not that the display was in any way spectacular or sensational, but the exquisite dances which were all carried out with the same precision and verve coupled with it the originality of the steps made it the success it was.

Advance press reports did not do the troupe justice enough. It carried all that was said of them and more.

The display was sponsored by Mr. M. J. Quist the popular Consul General for the Netherlands in Hong Kong.

DISTINGUISHED GATHERING

A large and distinguished gathering was present to witness the display and among those were:

Major General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., H.E. The General Officer Commanding The Troops, and his party, the Hon. Sir William T. Southern, C.M.G., K.B.E., Colonial Secretary and his party, His Honour Mr. A. MacGregor and Mrs. MacGregor, Sir H.E. Pollock and Lady Pollock, Sir William Shenton and Lady Shenton's party, Sir Shouson Chow and Lady Chow, The Honourable Mr. T. H. King, Commander F. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott, Pay Master Commander Porter, The Honourable Mr. E. Taylor and party, The Honourable Mr. C. G. Alabaster and Mrs. Alabaster, The Honourable Mr. J. J. Patterson and Mrs. Patterson, The Honourable Mr. N. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, The Honourable Mr. T. N. Chau and Mrs. Chau and The Hon. Dr. W. B. Moore and Mrs. Moore.

The dances were all executed amidst gorgeous and elaborate settings. Every dance owed its origin to a Balinese legend or history.

The girls acquitted themselves very well. They carried with them the grace, rhythm and the supple movements which one saw in them as they danced to the beat of the native instruments, now slow, now fast and gradually worked up to a frenzy and back again to its original state.

The steps were quite different from the Western dances. They had all the same nonchalant movements which always had with it the same gracefulness and suppleness that are peculiarly all Bali's own.

Encores Demanded
There was a programme of eleven items and each was very warmly applauded. Encores were continually called for and special items of note were "The Worship of Doerga, The Wife of Siwa" and the "Gong Dance" which were carried out by Dewi Ratna and Ratu Idja respectively.

These two dancers showed in their respective dances how well versed they are in their work and each displayed the same rhythmic and characteristic poses. The "Fan Dance" by Ratu Idja also came in for its share of applause. Two musical selections were rendered by the orchestra. "Ball Fantasy" and "Sumatran Nights" and both were well selected items.

Other dances that took part were Dewi Wani, Dewi Wara, Mas Tadjab and others. The dazzling headgear of the dancers as they swayed from side to side made the scenes look lively with action.

The atmosphere which prevailed at this popular theatre last night was something altogether different to what we in Hong Kong have been accustomed. Every movement of the Balinese dancers was followed with abated breath as it were, and it would be no exaggeration to say that the high standard which was expected of the Dancers was excelled.

One very pleasing feature deserving of special mention was the total absence of jazz—a quantity which is monotonously associated with not only other dance displays, but also with the ordinary "events of the day."

A pat on the back to the accomplished artists and a very hearty vote of thanks to the management for securing the services of this very talented troupe.—(O.M.O.)

LETTERS FROM EXILE

Otto Documents To Be Published

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Vienna, March 5.
Otto von Hapsburg's letters written in the course of the last few years to various Austrian societies, clubs and associations are to be published in book form in the next few days by a newly founded firm of publishers. These "letters from exile" are obviously intended as a sensational document aiming at the determination, once for all, of Otto's attitude towards all great problems of the present day. Among the matters of prime importance, as regards the influence of the letters on public opinion and cause the claimant to the Austrian throne, is that whereby Otto declares grammatically that he "wants to build up a Catholic and social monarchy of the future—on the fundamental principles proclaimed by the great social Popes whose aims were not based on material and worldly conceptions but on the eternal truths of Christianity." Again Otto writes "not class warfare but class reconciliation, and social justice must be our slogan." This passage is regarded as a direct attempt to interest the workers of Austria in the plans of the monarchists.—Transocean Kuo Min

ITALIAN COLONIAL APPOINTMENT

Rome, March 5.
The creation of a high commissioner for the Italian possessions of Erythra and Somaliland is provided for by the bill just sent to the Italian Chamber which declared that it was essential because of the necessity of uniform political and military management of these two territories. The high commissioner is to be given all authority and powers of the former governor of Erythra while for Somaliland he receives plenary powers for the supervision of initiative in military and political directions.

The first high commissioner is expected to be the ex-Colonial Minister, General de Bono, one of the four leaders in the "March on Rome."

But there are organisations and institutions already in existence which could be helped, and there are others which are badly needed. The first message of hope to the young might be provided by an extension of Infant, Aid and Child Welfare centres, by helping hospitals for sick children, doing something more for the destitute young, and giving additional aid to the youthful blind. If a fund for this purpose, for the help of the young Chinese of the Colony, be opened without delay, it will provide the opportunity that so many seek for taking part in the Jubilee celebrations, and it will do more than any external pomp or pageantry to promote peace and friendship between the two great peoples that are brought together in close contact in Hong Kong.

TRAGEDIES OF BLOOD

Some Later Elizabethan Dramatists

The English Association was on Tuesday given a peep into an Elizabethan theatre and, under Mrs. Chancellor's skilful guidance, was shown some of the later dramatists actually at work in their charming of the people of Elizabeth and the first James with blood and thunder tragedy. She disregarded their purely literary pretensions and concentrated on the popularity with their audiences of Webster, Tourneur, and Ford, who were apparently catering for a public that corresponded with the British cinema public of to-day. They were highly successful and popular in these days by the same methods as scenario writers at present are highly successful with such films as "Disraeli" and "The Count of Monte Christo", that is by giving the public exciting and moving stories with plenty of action, preferably about the great ones of this earth, since the public was then, as it is now, intensely snobbish.

In this catering for public tastes they had a very different set of difficulties to contend with from those of the present day. The theatre then was a rather crude building open in the middle to the sky; into the middle of the auditorium jutted the stage around which, cracking nuts and eating apples, stood the groundlings. The aristocracy was housed in boxes or even on the stage. The result was that the stage had nothing except natural illumination so that to night scenes the author had to create the illusion by words alone; there was no curtain and therefore the scenes could never end in a climax but had to finish off so as to let passionate lovers walk off the stage or dead bodies be carried off; there was little or no scenery. With the audience so near, of course, the actors had the chance to speak directly to them, so we get very long harangues and soliloquies; in Henry V there are seventeen speeches all longer than Hamlet's "To be or not to be..." soliloquy. Behind the main stage there was a back stage and behind that again an alcove with above it a balcony; this alcove was used as a cave (as in the Tempest) as a study, a tomb, or a bedroom, as occasion served; while the gallery above was used as the walls of a town, Juliet's balcony, the walls of a castle, as the fit took them. But one was never quite sure, to begin with, exactly what it was supposed to represent. One advantage of all this was that there was no limit to the number of scenes possible on such a stage and the dramatists of the time took full advantage of this; in Antony and Cleopatra, for example, there are as many as forty two scenes. The actors were well-dressed, but there were no actresses—all the female parts, even such parts as the Duchess of Malfi and Vittoria Corombona had to be played by boys; this rendered disguising a female character as a boy in a play was a favourite one; Shakespeare uses it in As You Like It.

Blood and Sudden Death
The most popular plays from the time of the Revenger's Tragedy were full of blood, and massacre and sudden death. Dead men's hands, poisoned skulls, bloody corpses, madmen, graves were the commonplaces of Elizabethan tragedy and are the lineal ancestors of the diabolical crimes retailed in Edgar Wallace and the Bull Dog Drummond stories. The only difference is that the Elizabethans were much more free and easy in their use of unpleasant words and gruesome similes, as when of a Cardinal it is said that "the spring in his face is like the engendering of toads." Acted on a modern stage these rather formless plays with their involved plots and sub-plots and their sensational action and accoutrements and stage properties might be difficult to produce but they would make good talkies and one of them has actually been screened as a talkie. Variety was then esteemed a great virtue, and the variety was obtained in a number of ways—by masques and dances, by plays or interludes in the course of the main play, and by songs sad or humorous. Some of these are very beautiful, but the humorous ones which appealed doubtless to the more masculine palates of that age seem to us rather too coarse. Fights there are too, and stabbings, though usually a simple stabbing was not enough—it had to be done in some peculiar "lingering" way, as in our modern novels where the villain groans while he sets a time fuse. All these extraordinary happenings—especially the more immoral of the goings-on—were impossible in an England which prided itself then, as now, on its morality, and consequently the scenes are laid on the continent, usually in Italy which had then a reputation for strange happenings.

But in spite of all these monstrous actions and supersensational plots, we find many occasions when we can share in a very true and very real pathos which is found scattered through the tragedies and we find that the dramatists of that time never descended to the maudlin banalities, to the sentimental, Barresque sentiment that so often results from any attempt at pathos on our modern stage. As Lamb put it, "There is a grandeur of the soul above mountains, seas, and the elements."

Mrs. Chancellor illustrated the different qualities, the poetry, the sensationalism, the pathos, of Webster, Tourneur, and Ford by reading selected passages from their plays.

The Discussion
Lady Southern, in thanking Mrs. Chancellor for her brilliant lecture, expressed the opinion that the plays of the later Elizabethan dramatists were "museum pieces" which it would not be worth while spending time and money on producing for the stage to-day. She would far rather hear Mrs. Chancellor lecture, on them, or Lady Strachey—or a successor—give one of her readings of the plays. The more one read these plays the more clearly did the genius of Shakespeare shine out; he was able to write plays which were just as popular now as when they were written.

Mr. G. P. de Martin raised the question whether Fletcher wrote part of Shakespeare's "Henry the Eighth."

Professor R.K.M. Simpson complimented Mrs. Chaffell on the way she had handled a difficult subject, first sketching in the background with an account of the Elizabethan stage and then reading so admirably selections from the plays. As for the value of these dramatists in comparison with other great authors of English literature, that question had been a matter of dispute for the last hundred years and was never likely to be settled. Over-praise by Lamb and Swinburne had brought about a re-action of opinion as expressed by William Archer and Bernard Shaw. Apart from the fact that few people read these old plays, an appraisal of them was difficult because there was no background of biography to support them. Professor Simpson commended to those who wished to study the subject F. L. Lucas's edition of Webster in four volumes, and said he differed from Lady Southern's remarks that it would be a waste of time and money to put on the plays. He had seen them successfully produced, to the entertainment of the audience.

Mr. R. R. Campbell made the point that the Elizabethan dramatists were able to draw audiences against the competition of the bear pit and public executions.

H.E. the Governor expressed the thanks of the audience to Mrs. Chancellor and announced that the speaker next month will be the Chief Justice.

"FIREWORK KING" DEAD

Londoner Who Took Displays

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 16.

Mr. Henry James Pain, formerly one of the "firework kings" of America, has died at his Kensington home aged 77.

He was the eldest son of the late Mr. James Pain, the founder of the famous London firm, and, beginning at the Mitcham factory as a boy of 15, he was 30 when he was sent to New York to found a branch.

He began the famous displays on Manhattan Beach and also gave the fireworks shows at the World's Fair in Chicago.

He went back to the States during the war at the invitation of the American Government to superintend the manufacture of star shells.

Mr. Pain was busy this week studying the preparation for the King's Jubilee.

PARLIAMENT COMES TO LIFE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 12. Parliament, overlaid and almost suffocated for over three years by the overwhelming Government majority, is coming to life at last. It has taken the upheaval of indignation all over the country about the means test to do it, but it is a good sign that even a Parliament containing nearly five hundred Tories can respond so quickly to a popular cry for justice.

Nothing in Parliament this week can match in importance the debates of one kind or another on the breakdown of the new unemployment assistance regime. There is the debate that will take place on the Enabling Bill legalising the "standstill" arrangement, and then there is to be the Labour vote of censure on the Government for its deplorable mishandling of the whole business—linked with a general attack on the Government's failure to deal with unemployment as a chronic evil.

To have to face both a hot criticism of its means test blunders and its lack of a policy for unemployment would have been a severe trial for the Government at any time; but it is decidedly serious coming now, when Tory discontent with the Government's feebleness is so manifestly mounting. It completely dwarfs the India issue, which has now become a struggle between a handful of rhetoricians and a great majority willingly committed to the Federal scheme.

TREATMENT OF MALARIA

All the news of the very serious epidemic of malaria fever in Ceylon has added to the dismay and astonishment which it occasioned at its outbreak. It had been supposed that the discoveries of Manson, Ross and other pioneers had effectually prevented such terrible outbreaks by measures calculated to reduce the number of disease-bearing mosquitoes. Yet that view finds very little support in the statistical evidence which is available for the world as a whole. The general incidence of malaria has not been seriously reduced during the past twenty years, though its incidence in given areas has been reduced very greatly. The task, in other words, is so difficult and so costly that its successful accomplishment demands larger resources than are usually available. Ross himself refused to accept this evident truth as an object of a fatal kind to the plans which were so much in his thought. He used to urge that, given the men and the money, malaria could be abolished from most, if not from all, of the countries where it is endemic, and he looked upon the failure to achieve such a deliverance as proof of lack of enterprise on the part of governing authorities. But others who have studied the disease have come more and more to believe in methods of treatment as an essential addition to methods of prevention. Such methods of treatment are themselves preventive in character. If a patient with malaria can be cured speedily, the disease will be localized because few mosquitoes will become infected. Again, if active works to prevent the breeding of mosquitoes are in progress, there will be fewer mosquitoes to become infected, and there will be a further limitation of spread. For this reason great interest is now being taken in the new drugs that are being offered as additions to the ordinary therapy by quinine. It was pointed out some time ago by Colonel S. P. James in the "Journal of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene" that the aim is the discovery and manufacture of products effective for purposes which quinine does not fulfil, "and so to supplement this one, and only remedy." Chief among these purposes is the prevention of an attack in a person who has been exposed to infection by being bitten by infected mosquitoes—for to prevent, or even to postpone, the attack is also to check the spread of infection. Colonel James was

When interviewed by Reuter, Moore, one of their number, said that they started from Nanchang on February 2, when the Reds were some 30 li distant, and gathered the missionaries from the other stations en route. Suffering from severe hardships, the party walked eight days to Ankang, the majority possessing only the clothes they stood up in while the women were mostly clad in Chinese garments. They travelled from Ankang to Laohouk by boat and thence by bus and train.

London, Mar. 3. The final trials of several high-powered, heavily armoured British-built speedboats, for use in pirate and smugglers suppression along the coasts and rivers of China, were completed at Southampton to-day.

The first of these craft, the Kuan Wei, will be shipped during the week-end, and is consigned to the Chinese Maritime Customs authorities.

The vessels draw only two feet of water, are forty-five feet long and are equipped with wireless and machine-guns.

A number of water-tight bulkheads make them practically unsinkable. Their speed is being kept a close secret but it is known that they are capable of well over thirty knots.

NAVY ESTIMATES FOR CURRENT YEAR

Increased Expenditure And Personnel

London, March 6. A net total expenditure of £60,050,000 which is an increase of £3,500,000, and an increase of 2,000 in personnel as compared with 1934 is provided in the Navy Estimates for 1935.

The increased expenditure includes £2,553,604 provision for maintenance of the Fleet due mainly to the cost of large repairs and modernisation of capital ships and partially remedying deficiencies in defensive material, stores and equipment, also £335,000 increase for Fleet Air Arm and £245,196 for normal progress of new construction which consists of three cruisers, one leader, eight destroyers, three submarines, one submarine depot ship, four sloops, one surveying ship and seven small vessels. The increase in personnel is chiefly due to replacement of old ships and expansion of the Fleet Air Arm.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Eyre Monsell, points out that the building of new cruisers, destroyers and submarines continues and is governed by the London Naval Treaty until December 31, 1936. Until then the British Commonwealth of Nations may only lay down under treaty replacement tonnage for cruisers and submarines becoming over age before the end of 1939 and for destroyers becoming over age before the end of 1938. These limitations have been borne in mind in fixing the programme for 1935.

The number of cruisers is normal since the Treaty for the fourth cruiser included in the 1933 programme, ultimately transferred to 1934, was to provide Australia with replacement for the cruiser Brisbane and this has now been fulfilled.

The number of destroyers and submarines is the same as in previous years after the Treaty.

Interesting features mentioned in the explanatory notes are equipment of ships with navigational instruments of higher efficiency and speed and distance recorders, automatic course recorders, echo sounding gear and the fact that all submarines are now fitted with the Davis escape apparatus.

ENGLISH IN MANCHUKUO

Whatever may happen to the "open door" in the Far East it is apparently not going to be shut on the English language. General Takayanagi, a distinguished Japanese commander, proposes the teaching of English in Manchukuo. His standpoint is pretty high.

The relations of Manchukuo with the world at large now make urgent a comprehensive propagation of the English language, which I believe is one of the greatest equipments for understanding and friendship between the peoples of the East and West. I believe, not only in the utilitarian benefits of knowing the English language, but also in its intrinsic benefits to the peace of the world.

It is odd to think of a consignment of English grammars coming up so fast on the heels of Japanese cavalry.

REBELLION IN GREECE CONTINUES

Another Ultimatum To Surrender

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Athens, March 5. Immediately after his arrival at Salonika, Kondylis sent the rebels a 24-hour ultimatum demanding unconditional surrender. Widespread anxiety is felt by the population of the capital because despite repeated bomb attacks from the air, the mutiny in the Navy in still uncrushed while the fighting in Macedonia continues and in many places have taken on a violent character.

In Government circles it is being recognised that the prestige at home depends on settling the accounts with the rebels, forthwith, hence the Cabinet has decided that the whole strength at the government's disposal will be concentrated on obtaining decisive conclusions both on land and sea. In accordance with this programme, air squadrons have already been sent against the five rebel warships in Crete waters but it is still unknown what damage has been inflicted. The bombardment is said to have been heavy and prolonged and one warship at least was hit by an air torpedo. The rebel fleet is completely surrounded by a ring of bombing planes and loyal warships which completely isolate the island of Crete from the outside world. The insurrectionists attempted to improve their situation by changing their position, having moved northward towards Cyclades where there is greater freedom of movement because the sea is full of small islands. While this materially helps the rebels to evade attack they remain as before—unable to take any aggressive action. The latest cables from Salonika state that the insurrectionists had been obliged to withdraw across the Strymon River but that they were surrounded by Government troops under Colonel Yalistras. Twenty-one bombing planes have left Salonika to attack the rebels in Macedonia.

Precautions For Peace In The Balkans

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

GOLD BOXES VANISH

Croydon Aerodrome Mystery

London, March 6.

Three boxes of gold valued at £21,000 were stolen from a safe at Croydon aerodrome between 10 p.m. on Tuesday when the safe was locked and 7 a.m. to-day when it was opened.

One box contained £8,000 in English sovereigns. The second box contained bar gold and the third American gold dollars.

The gold should have been despatched to Paris to-day.

The safe was apparently not forced and the manner of the disappearance of the boxes at present remains a mystery.

IMPORT LAW IN ITALY

Negotiations With Other Countries

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 6, 7.30 p.m.)

Rome, Mar. 6. Direct negotiations with a view to settling Italy's commercial relations with a number of foreign countries including France, Belgium, Poland, Holland, Czechoslovakia and Portugal on the basis of the import restrictions of February 16 last will commence in the course of a few days in consequence of the decision taken by the committee of foreign trade.

In order to prevent the Italian industry from a shortage of coal and other fuel as a result of the application of the new quota, the ministry of communications issued instructions for sale by state railways of their surplus supplies to industrial combines and firms.

An exception to the recently decreed restrictions in Italian imports has now been made in favour of foreign banks and illustrated papers may henceforth be imported into Italy in unlimited quantities. This measure has been taken in order to develop intellectual exchange of co-operation between Italy and other countries based on the principle of absolute reciprocity.

Answering another question, Bataloff confirmed that Turkey had recently carried out heavy concentration of troops and war materials near the Bulgarian frontier, and stated that these measures were inexplicable to him and he hoped that they were not directed against Bulgaria which had not given the least occasion for such an action.

INTERNATIONAL LOAN NOT REQUIRED

Japan Views China's Desired

Shanghai, Mar. 6.

The British Minister, Sir Alexander Cadogan, has denied categorically the "misleading reports" that Britain proposed a loan to China although it is admitted that there has been an exchange of views concerning the country's financial situation.

A statement issued by the British Legation this afternoon says that "in view of the misleading reports which have been circulated on the subject, His Majesty's Minister desires to state that no proposals have been made by His Majesty's Government for a loan to China."

"The facts of the matter are that the present financial situation in China recently formed the subject of an exchange of views between the Chinese Government and His Majesty's Government. His Majesty's Government are naturally anxious to see China afforded such financial assistance as may be possible in connection with these financial difficulties. They are convinced that in such a matter it is essential to act in consultation with other interested Governments to whom they therefore informed their discussions with the Chinese Government and whose views they desire to have on any concrete proposals that may emerge."

LORD LYTTON'S STATEMENT

Cloud Of Suspicion In Far East

London, March 6.

Interviewed by "Reuter," Lord Lytton declared that in Sino-Japanese negotiations it was difficult for Tokyo and Nanking to reach by themselves an agreement of permanent value owing to Chinese suspicion of Japanese motives and the certainty that an agreement, however innocent, will be misrepresented in China against Japanese circles abroad.

Lord Lytton continued: "I have always strongly reprobated indiscriminate attacks against Japan which merely close up the Japanese ranks and antagonism to the rest of the world. It is unfortunate the League did no more than pass a vote of censure on Japan. The line of approach should be not as a critic but in a spirit of friendship to endeavour to secure an agreement acceptable to all and dissipate the cloud of suspicion overhanging the Far East. The World wants Japan back in the League and unless the Far Eastern question can be settled it may destroy the League altogether."

ABUNDANT ROOM

"I am sure Japanese Liberals realize the need for a frank and sincere settlement with China. I think the militarists share that view if put to them fairly. Their strategic position with a discontenanced Manchuria and hostile China must cause them anxiety. There is no question of any Power dominating China. She is too big and there is abundant room for

THE NEW PRIMUS OF SCOTLAND

[Special Air Mail Service]

Edinburgh Feb. 12. The Bishop of Moray, Ross, and Caithness, Dr. A. J. Maclean, has been unanimously elected Primus of the Episcopal Church in Scotland, in succession to Bishop Robberds, for many years Bishop of Brechin, who retired at the end of last year.

The election took place in Edinburgh at a meeting of the synod of the Episcopal Church in Scotland, which was attended by all the bishops. The election of Dr. Maclean was moved by the Bishop of Argyll and the Isles and seconded by the Bishop of Aberdeen. Dr. Maclean, who is the senior bishop, was born in 1858. He has been Bishop of Moray, Ross, and Caithness for thirty years. In the course of his notable Church service he has been Dean of Argyll and the Isles and Principal of the Theological College of the Episcopal Church in Scotland at Edinburgh.

all to share Chinese trading without jealousy.

"As regards China, the first requisite is to reinstate her in the League Council. I hope this will be found possible."

"It is evident that China must have financial help owing to the serious state of her currency due to the rise of silver. An international loan seems the only way. It is hardly thinkable that Japan can find the money alone."

"Help from America in finding a solution to the difficult problems in the Far East is urgently needed."

LOAN PROPOSALS FROM CHINA

Disclosure At House Of Commons

London, Mar. 6.

Replying to Mr. W. Nunn, Conservative, in the House of Commons to-day as regards the projected loan to China and whether it was intended that consortium machinery should be used, Sir John Simon announced that definite proposals were put forward in December for a loan, but they did not appear to the Government, after careful examination, to provide a satisfactory remedy for the situation. The Government were watching the Chinese financial situation closely and attached great importance to co-operation between the powers primarily concerned, including of course China. The Government are in touch with those Powers. No project for a loan to China was actually before the Government and therefore the last part of the question does not arise.

"A LIGHTER TOUCH"

London, March 5. Sir John Simon added that America was one of the governments to which he referred when he said the Government were in touch with other interested Governments including China.

Lady Astor amusingly interjected: "Will Sir John Simon guarantee to touch China a little lighter than he touched Germany in the last few days?" (this reference being in defence of the White Paper).

JAPANESE VIEWS

Loan Not Required By China

Tokyo, Mar. 6.

The Foreign Office to-day received an official report from the Japanese Ambassador in Washington to the effect that Mr. William P. Phillips, U. S. Under-Secretary of State, showed Mr. Saito a memorandum on the interview the former had with the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, on March 1.

Japanese official circles, in Tokyo maintain that China at present does not require an international loan, declaring that China is determined to normalise her finances herself after regaining national stability through materialisation of Sino-Japanese co-operation.

Furthermore, China would not welcome an international loan because she has awakened to the reality of the situation in the Far East, while Japan cannot comply with such a request even if asked by China to do so.

WORLD RECORD FOR STEAM TRAIN

London, March 6.

On the return journey to London from Newcastle last night, the seven-year-old Pacific type of London north-eastern engine beat the record it established on the North "earlier" in the day. It reached a speed of 108 miles an hour and maintained an average of 100.6 miles per hour for 124 miles. These speeds are the highest ever recorded by a steam train anywhere in the world. On its outward and return run, the engine covered 536.4 miles in 7 hours 47 minutes with a load of 213 tons.

LONDON TO FLY SCOTS FLAGS

During The Jubilee Celebrations

[Special Air Mail Service]

London, Feb. 16.

When the King's Silver Jubilee is celebrated in London the honour of Scotland will be upheld by the flying at the Scottish Office in Whitehall not only of the Lion Rampant but also of that other national standard, the Cross of St. Andrew.

It may be asked, has that not always been done? Actually, the official decision to unfurl both standards has only now been taken and after attention was drawn to the matter by Mrs. Helen Shaw, M.P. for Bothwell.

Wrong Side of Street
It seems that at the wedding of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina more than one London-Scot, when passing down Whitehall on the side where the Scottish Office stands, looked up to see what display had been made of their own national flags. Not one was to be seen!

Indignant at this apparent slight to their country, they instituted inquiries, only to learn that if they had walked on the other side of the street they would have seen the Lion Rampant fluttering on the top of the Scottish Office, though it is admitted that the huge dome which forms the main

What was to be done? The Secretary for Scotland took up the matter seriously. Experts informed him that to have another large upright flagpole on the front of the Scottish Office where it would be visible from anywhere in Whitehall would mar the whole architectural effect of the building.

Against Etiquette

Other experts made it clear that a temporary horizontal pole to carry the St. Andrew's Cross during the Jubilee celebrations was possible, but would be quite against heraldic etiquette, as flags are supposed to be flown only from vertical staffs.

He has decided, however, that architectural feature of the front of the building almost completely hides the flag from most vantage points.

to commit such a trifling technical error would be better than to show no flag at all on the front of the Scottish Office.

So, when Scots in London gather in Whitehall in May to take part in the Jubilee celebrations they will have the satisfaction, if they stand on the right side of the roadway and at the right spot, of seeing both their flags fluttering bravely, while if they happen to get just in front of the Scottish Office they will at least know that they are standing below the Cross of St. Andrew.

Gossip From The Camps

(From a Correspondent)

London, Feb. 16.
He signed for two clubs and kicked a ball for neither of them. That's an experience of Alec Hastings, Sunderland's left-half who carries captaincy cares on his young shoulders. It happened before he became a senior in Scotland.

Alec put his name to a form for a junior side boasting the name of Rosewell Rosedale. He changed his mind; was released and joined Dunblane, another junior lot. Before he had a chance to turn out for them Stenhousemuir came along and signed him on a Scottish League form. It was the way he went about things there that made Sunderland take him to Roker.

Ghost Trains

I've seen "football ghost trains. They're the ones that bring back defeated teams. Here's the international football train. It leaves Preston at 6.6 p.m. On Saturday nights it carries back London teams and Midland teams who have been playing at Blackburn, Preston and Blackpool.

Last Saturday, however, this train, which starts its journey at Aberdeen, carried the Aberdeen and St. Johnstone teams to Coatbridge. Into the same coach at Preston went the Birmingham team which had played at Blackburn.

The Make-Weight

Do you know the real reason why the Wolves took two players and not one from Accrington Stanley? Here it is. Marsden, the full back, was the real objective. He was watched for a month. The Wolves knew that Liverpool, Burnley and one or two others had also been looking. Accrington Stanley apparently knew as well. They asked a good fee for the player.

The Wolves were not to be put off. "That's a stiff figure," they said. "Let us have Aspin for a small fee and we'll take the pair." The proposal was agreed to. Maybe Aspin will turn out the better capture. That's happened before.

A Great Scout

Many football officials learned with regret the death late last week of Mr. Willie Hill, who, for several years, had represented Portsmouth in Scotland, the north-east and Manchester. Mr. Hill was well known in football circles. He had been ill since early summer.

In his time he was the means of sending several good players to Portsmouth. These include the late Bob Kearney, Jimmy Esson, Bob Salmon, and Jack Anderson. His judgment was greatly respected by Mr. Jack Tinn, the Portsmouth manager, and the directors.

Some people would like to put the clock back. Birmingham would dearly like to put the clock forward. The process might cost Birmingham the services of one or two good men. It would mean that the maturing process of other players would be completed.

The Brums are marking time about some of these. Three of them are Dearson, Moffat and Wilson Jones. George Liddell, the Birmingham manager, tells me, "These three need just this season for building-up requirements. Then they'll be ready for anything." The St. Andrew's trouble is that present needs are urgent.

Wrong Guess

Wh. Derby County were drawn to play the winners of the Everton v. Sunderland replay they fixed up everything for a special training stay at Saltburn. The idea was to get the players acclimatised to the north-east air. In other words, Derby County thought they would be playing their fifth round game at Roker Park and not at Goodison!

A Norwich Hopeful

The folks at Norwich aren't half pleased with things these days. Promotion last season has been followed by a cup run this term. That replay win at Leeds beat the band. The Canaries, I imagine, were quite prepared to have a struggle this term to hold their own in the Second Division.

That's not all. A Norwich man says to me: "Watch Kirchen, our outside-right. This boy may be an international."

A London "Nursery"

A Midlands club may get Billy Brown, Luton Town's clever right-half. Anyway, the folks watching this young Londoner mostly have their headquarters in the Midlands. Luton will want a lot of persuading to part.

It isn't generally known that Billy graduated from the same team as Charlie Fraser, Luton's left-half, and for that matter George Barber, Chelsea's right-back. The team was one connected with Fairbairn House, the London welfare organisation.

Lincoln Attractions

Lincoln City have missed the promotion boat. Their stay in the Northern Section will be for more than one season. That doesn't mean things are all dull at Sincil Bank.

The City landed a four-figure fee from Sunderland for back Wilkinson, the outside left. Furthermore, Iverson, inside-right, and Watson, full back, have got certain other clubs buzzing. Another lad causing a stir amongst the lumps is

Not Parting

Seems Oldham Athletic are not at the mercy of any club that comes along and says "We'll give you so much for him." The Latics need money. There's an obvious effort being made at Boundary Park to hold their players.

Recently a First Division club made inquiries about Arthur Buckley, a young winger at Oldham. They were politely informed that Buckley was not for transfer. This local lad is a player of possibilities. Personally, I think a change would work wonders for him. The Latics may think they can work the wonder themselves.

Useful in Close Season

When Sheffield United signed Archie McPherson from Liverpool they got a tenacious left-half. Likewise they added to their cricket strength. During the summer Archie dons the flannels for Clackmannanshire, a country side in Scotland.

The Blades will remember this when they get together for training next close season. Cricket is a feature then amongst the footballers. Archie will be roped in.

Always Cheerful

You can't beat the Carrs for cheerfulness. Jack always has a string of laughs to raise, in spite of his cares as manager of Hartlepool United. George, now player-manager of Nuneaton Town, was just as cheerful when I met him a few days ago.

Under George's management Nuneaton affairs are in a healthy state. The team is doing well. The backbone thereof is of experienced players. But George has an eye on the younger side as well. Nuneaton Town want to play in the Midland League next season.

The Old Story

Burnley have been turning the deaf ear to certain inquiries recently received. That's natural. Things are on the mend at Turf Moor. They're still in the cup. But the deaf ear doesn't apply to all players.

Manager Tom Bromlow is willing to consider the transfer of certain performers. It may be the old story. The ones Burnley want to keep may be the ones the other clubs want.

CLUB BECOME CHAMPIONS

Wins Triangular Tournament

Contrary to all expectations the Army lost to the Hong Kong Hockey Club in the last of the Triangular Hockey Matches yesterday by the only goal scored and thus the Hockey Club by virtue of their victory is the winner of the Tournament, with Army second and the Navy third.

The inclusion of G.E.R. Divett in the forward line added much to the fine display of the Club's forwards.

Army played very ragged throughout as compared to the Club's continual barrage of raids. Play opened with the Army attacking but Reed (W) relieved. Club attacked for the greater part and the Army forwards were very erratic. Gregory was tested hotly by the Indians but kept his goal intact. Following a clever piece of stick work A. T. Lay scored with a hard drive that beat Hollingsworth all the way. Despite the Army's valiant attempt, to score the Club was able to maintain this lead when the half time whistle blew.

After resumption Army missed very badly. Gregory saved now and again with the indomitable Reed at centre half covering Garthwaite & Co. very well. The Club attacked on the right and Divett missed a good opening. Final whistle found the Army still trying to equalise.

SEVEN-A-SIDE RUGGER

All Army Teams Win

Seven matches in the preliminary round of the Seven-a-Side rugby tournament for the Blarney Stone trophy were played off on the Club ground yesterday.

The biggest win of the day was registered by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, the holders, who, meeting the 8th D/F "B", scored an overwhelming victory by 28 points (4 goals, 2 tries) to nil. By their form shown, the holders will be a hard team to beat, but the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, who are holding two teams will offer stout opposition.

The Results

The following were the results: R.A.M.C. beat H.M.S. Berwick "C", 10-0. R.W.F. "B" beat H.M.S. Suffolk "A", 4-0. H.K.F.C. beat H.M.S. Berwick "B", 23-3. East Lanes beat 8th Destroyer Flotilla "A", 8-3. R.W.F. "A" beat H.M.S. Suffolk "B", 19-0. R.E. beat H.M.S. Berwick "A", 8-3. H.K. and S. Bank beat 8th Destroyer Flotilla "B", 24-0.

LADIES' GOLF

Results Of Various Competitions

CHAMPIONSHIP

The Ladies' Champion for 1935 is Mrs. K. S. Robertson. She beat Mrs. Laffond on Saturday, 2nd March, by 2 and 1 on the Old Course, Fanning.

Mrs. Robertson won the first three holes. She had a perfect 4 at the first, Mrs. Laffond missing her drive. Mrs. Laffond missed her drive at the 2nd, and Mrs. Robertson holed out in 8 after missing a short putt for a 5. A perfect 3 at the third made her 3 up. Mrs. Laffond won the 4th, where both had good drives, and the 5th was halved in 5. Mrs. Robertson won the 6th, and was 3 up again. A feature of this hole was the beautiful iron shots which both ladies played. Mrs. Laffond won the Bog after being short with her tee shot, while Mrs. Robertson was bunkered. The 8th was halved; Mrs. Laffond had a poor drive, but recovered with a fine approach, while her opponent missed hers. Mrs. Laffond won the 9th, and was 1 down at the turn. Mrs. Robertson lost the 10th and 11th, and Mrs. Laffond was up for the only time in the match. Mrs. Laffond had a 6 at the 10th; after a poor drive, she recovered well with a good iron and a good approach. Mrs. Robertson played a very courageous spoon across the gully at the 11th, which luckily finished in one of the terraces, and her next shot was pulled over the side. The match was squared at the Gem, where neither player was up. Mrs. Robertson taking 4. Mrs. Robertson become 1 up again at the 13th. The next three holes were halved, the Armchair in 5. Mrs. Robertson won the 17th, and the match was over—2 and 1. It was a keenly contested final, and the winner deserves hearty congratulations.

TRAINING GALLOPS

Preparing For Saturday

Although no very fast work was put in yesterday at the course quite a large number of ponies were put through their paces and some quite good times were clocked.

Able Amazon moved well over a mile in 2.05.2 finishing in 29; Bag Tor was sent over a mile and a quarter to return 2.32, wiping up the last quarter in 27. Ribble was sent over the same distance at a more sedate gait. Covering the last quarter in 26 seconds at the end of a mile which took 2.07.1 Goldsmith looked very fit.

The majority of the ponies are being nursed for the opening of the extra meetings on Saturday when a very interesting programme of events will be decided.

"To whom shall I deliver it, my Lady?" he asked, knowing full well her reasons for having the key made by him, but too clever to seem to know.

"Deliver it to me—in person. This key unlocks the balcony door leading to my apartment. It is—er—a present from the Duke, a surprise for him."

"Were the Duke to see me, my Lady, I should be forced to explain and then the gift would no longer be a surprise."

The Duchess of Florence smiled sweetly, and wisely, at Benvenuto then. She admired his tact.

"Have no fears, the Duke will not see you. He will be at the palace here in the city. This is for my balcony door at the Summer palace and—I shall be there, waiting for it."

He bowed low.

"It will be a pleas—an honour, my Lady, to obey your command and to fulfil your commission."

The Duchess nodded and her eyes twinkled as she turned to go. Benvenuto leaped to hold open the door for her.

"Tonight—at the twenty-first hour," she murmured.

"My Lady, I shall be there—Oh, the guards about, put there by the Duke to keep me in—if my Lady says the word I will fight my way through all of them."

"One of my own guards will be at this door. It will be a simple matter then," she whispered.

Her guard closed the door and instantly Benvenuto was a changed man. No more was his neck in danger of the noose, he felt quite sure, and at hand was another "affair" such as promised to put all of his past affairs to shade.

"Ho, Ascanio, come hither and start the forge fires!" He strutted about as the apprentice, came out and began to get busy. "And clean the floor where the fools bled. I would to high heaven that it was all the blood of Ottaviano there, but I shall let his blood before long."

He went to the bench, got gold and proceeded to work on the making of the duplicate key.

"Yes, Ascanio," he continued, jubilantly, "I have work to do this night—work fit for the gods!"

He took a strip of gold to the forge, not noticing what his apprentice was doing.

"Hang me? Then they shall have to hang the Duchess with me! Here, Ascanio—what the devil is this you are doing?"

"The plates, Master."

"To the devil with the plates, lackwit! Plates will not unlock any boudoir doors! This key must be finished and delivered by me this night."

"But, Master, you cannot go out. There are guards to stop you, and the Duke ordered you to work on the plates."

"A fig on the Duke's orders. I am working at the orders of the real ruler of this state."

Before dark the duplicate key was fashioned and burnished, a true work of art, despite the speed with which it was made. No other goldsmith could have worked with such speed and skill, not even with the incentive ahead that gave Benvenuto his speed this day. He sent out for food and noted that a new guard was at the door as he stood in the open doorway on pretext of giving Ascanio orders about the food. This man, he knew, would be the guard sent there by the Duchess and he would have no difficulty in leaving when the time came.

He feasted and bathed and donned one of his handsomest costumes, but beneath it he made sure to wear his fine coat of chain mail.

There had been many stirring activities this day close to the throne in Florence.

Take the hideous old hag, Beatrice, now. She had received her instructions and the pouch of gold from Polverino, more gold than she had ever seen before. And she was chuckling with glee over the forty ducats Benvenuto had given her for Angela.

She saw to it to obey Polverino, however, when he ordered her to use a certain amount of the money for fitting Angela out in a costume suitable for the palace.

The old woman babbled as she got Angela into the clothes.

"Imagine you being in the Duke's court, my dear," she cried, "and bear in mind that you must please him in anything he may wish."

"But you said—"

"Never mind, bear in mind that it was I who watched over you and now see what comes of it! A great lady's Court lady! And behold this costume, my dear!"

"Pretty," Angela said, "but the Duke makes me nervous."

"Never say that! Smile at him, flatter him."

At the palace of the Duke in Florence the Duke was secretly making ready to depart.

"Matters of state, my dear. I must confer with certain officials at the Hall of Pledges. After that, possibly, a game or so of draughts. I shall be late for we have much to discuss and we expect a representative from Venice—our difference will doubtless be smoothed out and any clash of arms avoided, a good thing, as wars are expensive."

The Duchess listened to this explanation with a serious face and said a few words of sympathy because affairs of state weighed so heavily upon the shoulders of her Lord.

"As for me, my head has been aching, my Lord," she told him. "I shall take a sleeping potion the physician recommends and no doubt be quite myself again tomorrow."

"Good enough, my Lady. The best thing you could do!" the delighted Duke assured her.

He departed for the Summer palace to personally train the beautiful Angela into the "etiquette" of his Court.

Considerably later the Duchess departed for the Summer palace to be on time when Benvenuto should "personally deliver" the key to her private apartment.

Can you guess what may happen with the Duke and the Duchess each believing the other to be elsewhere, and both planning a rendezvous at the same palace? Don't miss tomorrow's instalment of this gay story of old Florence.

THE TENNIS TOURNNEY

Singles And Doubles Holders Win

Yesterday's matches in the Open Tennis Championships organised by the Hong Kong Cricket Club, which resulted as expected, were chiefly confined to the doubles, there being only one singles encounter.

Tsui Wai Pui, the holder of the Singles title, was seen in action against A.E.P. Guest whom he beat 6-2, 6-4. The champion played at the top of his form and displayed a great variety of strokes to advantage. His service was hard and accurate while his placements and drop shots worried Guest to such an extent that the latter was often forced to send them either outside the court or into the net. Tsui mixed his shots admirably and his overhead work was a delight to watch. His driving too was seen to good advantage. Guest played his usual type of game, being very steady, but he found in Tsui a player who knew all the tricks of the game.

He was greatly handicapped by the weakness of his backhand, a disadvantage which Tsui was soon to grasp sending his shots time after time in that direction.

The champion found his form from the start, taking the first four games in a row. He then eased up a bit, thus allowing his opponent to capture two games in succession, but after this Tsui again exerted himself to win the set.

The second set started with Guest leading till the eighth game when Tsui came into his own again and captured the games necessary for the set and match.

The Doubles

In the doubles, the Rumjahn cousins who have held the title for the past ten years, were opposed to H.D. Tollington and C. Ravenhill whom they defeated 6-4, 6-1. The cousins took some time to find their form with the result that they were led in the first set. As soon as they found their form however, the cousins played dazzling tennis, combining with perfect understanding. Their overhead work and smashes were brilliant and time after time these shots left the British pair standing.

The hardest-fought match seen yesterday was the one between the Lo brothers and J. G. Haigh and G. S. Gamble, which resulted in a win for the former 9-7, 7-5. It was a match of experience against stamina.

T. Kwok and Luk Ding Cheung proved to be a much better combination than M. Beach Thomas and W. N. Netch, while A. V. Gosano and A. V. Remedios emerged victors in their hard struggle against P. K. Liang and H. N. Lee.

The following were the results:—

Open Doubles
S. A. and H. D. Rumjahn beat H. D. Tollington and C. Ravenhill 6-4, 6-1.

A. V. Gosano and A. V. Remedios beat P. K. Liang and H. N. Lee 6-4, 6-4.

M. W. and M. K. Lo beat J. G. Haigh and G. S. Gamble 9-7, 7-5.

Wong Fuk Nam and Ho Hin Han beat A. E. Collins and L. E. Kirby, 6-1, 6-4.

T. Kwok and Luk Ding Cheung beat M. Beach Thomas and W. N. Netch 6-3, 6-3.

Singles
Tsui Wai Pui beat A.E.P. Guest 6-2, 6-4.

RUBBER MARKET REVIEW

Fluctuation Within Narrow Limits

The following London Rubber Market Review issued by Messrs. Lane Mitchell, Hyman and Kray Ltd., London has been forwarded by Messrs. G. A. Harriman and Co., the local agents of Stanton Nelson and Co., Ltd., of Singapore:-

RUBBER MARKET REVIEW

London, Feb. 15.
The back-wash of Pepper difficulties has caused two rubber brokers firms in Mining Lane to close down since we last wrote. The occurrence was expected and has had such prominence in the Press that no further comment on the subject is necessary.

Despite disturbances in other commodity markets and a small panic on the Stock Exchange, Rubber has kept very steady on balance, and values have fluctuated within narrow limits. There is a strong feeling in the market that the cut for the next quarter will be 30., and this undoubtedly stimulates buying on every recession. This anticipation of the Rubber Committee's decision is to our mind somewhat premature pending the judgment of the Supreme Court of the U.S.A. on the "Gold Clause." Until the judgment is published, having in view the World-wide repercussion it may have on foreign exchange values and the consequent adjustment in commodity prices, no accurate forecast can be made on the situation that may arise.

Last returns of stocks in the United Kingdom total 150,685 tons, an increase of 2,076 tons. During the week an increase of 2,600 tons is expected to have taken place. It is interesting to recall that during the first seven months of the Restriction Scheme the N.E.I. shipped 180,392 tons, as against permissible export of 178,933 tons, thus showing the negligible excess of 1,459 tons. Considering the difficulties inherent in the introduction of any new scheme, the result should be deemed satisfactory.

CANADIAN TYRES

British South Africa Takes Most.

Ottawa.
Canada shipped rubber automobile tyres to 70 different countries of the world in November last. Total shipments amounted to 83,988 tyres, valued at $606,436, as compared with 40,035 tyres, valued at $313,015, in November 1934. The largest shipments went to British South Africa and totalled 11,785 tyres. New Zealand came second taking 9,013 and the Netherlands third with 8,761. By continents, Europe, other than the British Isles in Canada,

BERLIN BOURSE

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, Mar. 5.
The upward movement in share prices that began at the end of last week continued vigorously on Tuesday, largely owing to Schacht's favourable prognosis on Monday at Leipzig on the economic outlook, despite the fact that Schacht admitted that Germany must still overcome serious difficulties. Reports from the Leipzig Fair that brisk business is being done with the home market reinforced and confirmed Schacht's statements. The fixed interest securities market was friendly, industrial bonds being firm, and gold and mortgage bonds well maintained.

Call Money: 3 1/2 to 3 1/2. Young Loan not quoted, on Monday it was 10 1/2. Reichsbank advanced 1 to 1 1/2. Dreyfus declined 1 1/2 to 1 1/2. Saldfuturh. Potash jumped 1 1/2 to 1 1/2. German Steel Trusts sprang 1 1/2 to 7 3/4. German Mineral Oil rose 1/2 to 8 1/2. Siemenshalske improved 1/2 to 140. Bemberg Rayon firmer at 118. Transocean Kuo Min.
